Surviving the End of the World in a Nutshell: A Short Guide to Help You Survive When the Grid Goes Down Brett Jordan

It's hard to ignore all the warning signs of the things happening in the world today. Always hearing of terrorists bombings, nuclear war and ISIL/ISIS threats to our country. It's not that we are trying to be pessimistic about the future, but it's better to be prepared for the worst than to be ill prepared and be stuck with nothing when tragedy strikes. Protecting families and loved ones is a high priority and should always be. The time really is now and it's more crucial and imperative that we take the actions necessary to get things ready for whatever might come.
