We all love to grow beautiful plants and flowers in our yards. When spring comes, it is only natural to want to get out there and get our hands dirty. Well, the one thing that we don't want to do is spend a lot of money on planting materials and chemicals that we don't want in our food and flowers anyway. So what are we to do?

Well, this is where composting comes in. When we start building our own compost, we are building our own natural fertilizer and growing materials. Since we are creating these compost piles ourselves we know what is going to them and what is not.

In this book, we will walk you through the misconception many people have about composts and why you should start one. We will talk to you about what items you need to have in your compost piles in order to achieve the greatest benefits and what items you never want to add. And finally we will walk you through the process you need to follow in order to start your compost pile, maintain your compost and how to effectively use it to grow the healthiest gardens and plants that you can.
