Venturing out to a new restaurant with the kids has the potential to be a nightmare experience. Will you be able to get your stroller through the door? Do they have child-friendly menus? Can you breastfeed there? Are kids even welcome? In a new guide to dining in Sydney, author and working mom Julie Chatto asks Sydney restaurants to put their money where their mouth is when it comes to catering for children. Drawing on the findings of a team of independent reviewers, this is a must-have guide for all parents looking to enjoy a stress-free meal out with the whole family. From grills, pubs, and sports clubs to cafés, restaurants, kiosks, lounges, and saloons—Sydney prides itself on the diversity of its eating establishments. But this can lead to confusion for parents. This guide levels the field by judging each restaurant against a high standard of criteria: child menus, allergies catered for, vegetarian meals, breastfeeding friendly, change facilities, wheelchair and stroller access, high chairs, toys, and more are all put under the microscope. The guide is divided into geographical areas to make it easier to find your new favorite local family restaurant. Regions covered include the North Shore and Beaches, Parramatta and Penrith, Hills District, the Blue Mountains, Central Coast, Wollongong, and the South Coast. As well as providing all the essential information on types of meals available, price ranges, licensing, payment options, and kid-friendly credentials, these reviews also reveal the fun details that can make or break a restaurant for kids. From fishponds and Playstation games to playgrounds, babyccinos, and even an outdoor art sculpture to climb on at one restaurant in Manly, this guide is proof that eating out with kids can be something to look forward to.
