This story was originally published in Day One, a weekly literary journal dedicated to short fiction and poetry from emerging writers.

It's a mystery that has haunted Drazen his whole life: How did his mother die? And why can't he recall a single thing about her?

He was nearly five when he fled with his father, Mehmet, to America to escape the turbulent Bosnian War. Mehmet salvaged only a few family keepsakes, leaving Drazen, now a grown man preparing to propose to his girlfriend, bereft of any link to his mother. When Drazen visits Mehmet for a marriage blessing, he secretly hopes this occasion might finally elicit the truth of his mother's death. But the painful memories still prove too raw for Mehmet to utter aloud. So when Mehmet's old friend, a hypnotist, comes to town to put on a show, Drazen jumps at the chance to talk with him. As he begins to uncover the past, will he have the courage to truly remember? And what if, in the end, he wishes he had never known?
